Pope Benedict In Dying Condition

HEAD OF CATHOLIC CHURCH RAPIDLY DEVELOPS PNEUMONIA AND IS GIVEN THE LAST SACRAMENT——CROWDS GATHER BEFORE THE VATICAN AS END IS FEARED.

(By The Associated Press.)

ROME, Jan. 20.—At twelve-thirty o'clock today it was stated tohat Pope Benedict is in dying condition. Inflammation which had been confined to his bronchial tubes has extended to right lung. The Pontiff's respiration reported early today as difficult, a condition which yesterday was described as not alarming took a turn for the worse during the night.

Extra editions of the newspapers offered little hope and great crowds began gathering at St. Paul's to await news from the Vatican. At seven o'clock the Pope received the holy communion. The Eucharist was solemnly carried to the Pope at eleven-thirty and in the presence of the eighteen cardinals the holy sacrament was placed in the Palatine Chapel.

The Pope's condition became grave about eleven o'clock today and oxygen was administered. Prayers were offered by all the Catholic institutions in Rome. When he asked for the last sacrament, attendants sought to dissuade him but he insisted on receiving it, "if only for good example." The sudden change came about four o'clock and is said to have been due to catarrh which had spread to both lungs and to pulmonary inflammation.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—The last sacrament has been administered to the Pope, says a Central News dispatch from Rome. The Central News also stated definitely that the Pope had pneumonia.

Pedestrians Have Narrow Escapes

A team of runaway horses caused considerable excitement on North Main street last night about 7 o'clock. Several pedestrians are said to have had close calls from being hurt or perhaps killed by the frightened animals, which were coming down the steep incline at a terrific rate. Fortunately no one was injured and no damage done, with the exception of the wagon, which was demolished. After tearing down North Main street from the top of the hill, the large wagon, which was swaying from side to side, finally gave way under the strain and the coupling broke. This was probably fifty feet from the railroad crossing. The rear truck of the vehicle was then released and was hurled with considerable force onto the sidewalk, narrowly missing two young women who were walking down the street. They were forced to run into a store for protection, and the proprietor thought that a big fight was on hand, from the commotion and screams.

The smashing of the wagon did not stop the animals, but increased their fright. They continued their wild dash with the front wheels and body of the wagon trailing behind. An automobile coming across the bridge had a close call from being struck. The two horses were finally stopped at the south end of the bridge by some men, who jumped in front of them.

Two farmers, whose names could not be learned this morning, soon after hte runaway came down North Main street questioning various people about their team. No one seemed to know at the time, but the two men kept walking and found the animals unhurt at the south end of the bridge. The men said that they were bringing a load of tobacco to town and that the animals became frightened when the wagon was struck a glancing blow by an automobile at the top of the hill. One of the men was thrown out, it is understood, when the horses took the sudden leap, but was not hurt. The other jumped, rather than stick to the wagon and probably be killed. The farmers did not make known their names or where they were from, but took charge of the hroses and made arrangements to return home.

Several Candidates for Police Sergeant

The police commission will meet at three o'clock this afternoon to take up a number of general matters.

It is unlikely that the commission will enter into the election of a third sergeant at this stage, it being felt that the matter should lie over until March when half of the force will be elected.

At the same time there are several candidates out for the position. Applications thus far filed include the names of J. C. Reynolds, O. S. Mayberry and J. T. Clark, men with creditable records. It is likely that Patrolman H. T. Haraway will also submit his name as a candidate before the election takes place.

The city council at its last meeting provided for the third police sergeant, which is considered necessary now that three shifts of policemen are working eight hours.

Sweeping Power is Vested in Council By Anderson Bill

ONE CLAUSE OF CHARTER AMENDMENT MEASURE WOULD GIVE CITY GOVERNING BODY RIGHT TO "ELECT SUCH OTHER EMPLOYES AS IT MAY DEEM NECESSARY."

Sweeping powers would be vested in the city council of nine members under the bill which has been introduced into the General Assembly by Major Joseph B. Anderson, and which doubtless will be swiftly passed unless some objection to it is raised by the action of the community.

Today The Bee received from Richmond the vital clause which is contained in the bill now pending and which would amend the charter of the city of Danville along lines suggested and endorsed by the city council at its last meetings.

The bill in question, which is introduced by Mr. Andreson "by request," contains this clause:

"The council may appoint a city attorney and a collector of city taxes after expiration of their present terms of office, an inspector of buildings AND SUCH OTHER EMPLOYES AS IT MAY DEEM NECESSARY AND DEFINE THEIR DUTIES AND POWERS."

The bill also includes provisions giving the council the right to issue bonds to the extent of $100,000 on its own initiative and without recourse to the people; raises the fining limit of the city from $50 to $500 and empowers the city to borrow on temporary loans up to $100,000.

The final passage of the clause quoted above was not suggested at the recent council meeting, when the charter amendments were brought to the attention of the public for the first time after having originated in the finance committee.

The obvious inference gathered from this clause is that the city council, consisting of nine men, five of whom constitute a working majority can, if they see fit, eliminate the right of the people at large to vote on such officers as are not constitutionally required to be voted on by the people at large such as the mayor, clerk of courts, commissioner of the revenue, commonwealth's attorney, and city sergeant. Eliminating these from the field the only employee who could be brought under the vote by the council would be the superintendent of public utilities, who is understood to be on record as being opposed to being removed from the direct voice of the people.

After the bill is passed, it would be possible for the council by resolution to amend the present city ordinances, and in this way bring under the immediate supervision and determination of the city council many employees who today are voted on by the people at large.

One lawyer who heard of the provisions of the proposed bill, said this morning that certain of the city officers who are also state officers would be protected by the constitution, which provides that they be elected by the people at large, which would give them security from being brought under the vote of the council.

It would not preclude the election by the council of the superintendent of the of public utilities, who is now elective by the people and who is in every sense an employe of the city since his compensation is derived solely from that source.

Wayles Harrison, member of the city council, who was apprised this afternoon of the scope of the proposed bill, ventured no comment other than that "it was not what the council asked for," and that it was "sweeping" in character.

Campbell Is Exonerated

Man Who Ran Over and Killed Carrie Leffew, Is Freed After Eyewitnesses Tell of Bridge Tragedy.

London Campbell was this morning exonerated of all blame in connection with the death of Miss Carrie Leffew, whom he struck with his automobile Tuesday night, causing such injuries that the young woman died within a few minutes after she was taken ta the hospital. After hearing the evidence, the court held that it was one of those unavoidable accidents in which Miss Leffew was the unfortunate victim. In dismissing the warrant, the mayor made it known that should any further evidence arise to show that Campbell was negligent, the case could be recalled before the grand jury.

The testimony this morning given by eyewitnesses was identically the same as related twice before. Campbell did not testify. It was brought out that Miss Leffew and Miss Dove Patterson were going in the direction of North Danville, to their home on Bellevue street. They were walking, and just before reaching the mouth of the bridge, were joined by George Saunders. All three were on the left side approaching the bridge. It is a custom for all persons going to the northside to take the right hand boradwalk of the bridge, and the same way on coming to South Danville. Miss Leffew stepped from the sidewalk to cross over, but had gone but a few feet when she turned around and said, "Come on, Dove." Almost simultaneously, Miss Patterson, who saw the oncoming auto, called out excitedly, "Look out, Carrie." By this time the young woman had been struck and the machine passed over her body. The left hand front and rear wheels passed over her chest. It was brought out that the car was not going more than 8 or 10 miles an hour.

Dan McQueen, who was in the car with Campbell, said that they felt something bumping under the machine and Campbell said, "I believe my engine has fallen." McQueen then looked back and said, "Stop London, you've hit a boy." The car was then halted and the two hurried to the unconscious form lying in the street. Campbell was alleged to have exclaimed, "My God, it's a girl," and the two lifted her into the machine and hurried to the hospital, where the young woman died within ten minutes.

Two brothers of the dead girl from Spray, were in court this morning.

Aged Seventy, She Slays Hawk With A Tobacco Stick

Pelham came to the fore this morning with another weird story rivalling that of the black snake which choked the tortoise to death.

Mrs. Polly Lovelace, seventy years of age, has recently been missing her hens. One by one they disappeared, until one day it was discovered that a large hawk was preying on the chicken run and lifting members of the feathered population with a lavish hand. The hawk was too wary to come within range of gunshot, and although several men had tried to shoot the bird, they had never had a chance.

Yesterday Mrs. Lovelace's chance to square the odds came. Hearing a commotion in the chicken run, she hastened there, to find the hawk at grips with a large hen into which it had sunk its talons. The bird was trying to take the air, and the hen was gamely resisting him. Despite her seventy years, Mrs. Lovelace sailed into the rescue and seizing the first weapon which came her way—a tobacco stick, she smote one lusty biff at the same approximate point where the well known chicken got the axe, and she laid out the aerial monster dead upon the ground.

The wingspread of the hawk was two feet.

Colonel Burton Has "Jonah" Trip

Col. R. A. Burton has returned from what he considers to have been his "Jonah" trip, or one on which bad luck and erroneous report dogged his path.

While on the train a fellow passenger told him that Danville Military Institute had burned up and that three boys had been killed. Col. Burton stopped at the first place practicable—one where the engine to his train was being changed and got in touch with Lynchburg, calling the newspaper office there for confirmation. He says he was first told that it was true that D. M. I. had burned up, but in a very few second investigation showed that it was Blackstone College, and not D. M. I.

Feeling greatly relieved, Col. Burton continued his travels, only to hear the next day that Mrs. Burton had developed diphthera. The finale came when he received, a few days later, a message saying that his son, Robert Burton, had been taken to a hospital with his left hand mutilated in an explosion. He then came home to find the young cadet making good progress.

The state dining salon and the table were decorated with pink roses, Roman hyacinthas and farleyense ferns.

Starving Horse Leads Searchers To Dead Master

Jim Hankins, Dead a Month, Discovered in Bed of His Little Home in Rockingham County.

How a starving horse led to the gruesome discovery of a man dead in bed nearly a month, was related today in a story which came from the vicinity of Spray, N. C., near which place James Hankins was found by a searching party on January 13th. Hankins was a bachelor about 65 years of age and lived alone in a little home, operating a farm. A group of neighbors at a country store on the night of January 13th were discussing the strange action of Hankin's horse, which was loose in a small pen, it having been observed that the horse was not being used and that whenever a human being came within range of it the beast whinneyed and cried in a distressing manner. Several farmers on that afternoon had seen the horse evidently trying to make something known to them. When the group of men recalled that Hankins had not been seen for some time it was decided to go to his premises. They started at 9 o'clock at night, with flashlights entered his home and flashing their lights on the bed found Hankins dead, neatly covered, but in a terrible condition.

The coroner was called and he surmised that the man had died from natural causes, as the coverlet was unruffled and the man had the appearance of having passed away in his sleep. It was impossible to prepare the body for burial in the usual way in view of the advanced stages reached by the corpse.

It is believed that the man died on the night of December 28. On that night Hankins had been visited by his nephews who live some distance away. They say that their uncle had put some dirty clothes in a pan of water and placed this on the kitchen stove with the idea of washing them the next day. This pan with the dirty clothes in it was intact indicating that the man never arose from his bed after going to sleep that night.

Immediate attention was given to the horse. It har been able to secure water, but it had eaten out all of the grass, such of it as there was and its famished state was plain to anyone who saw it. The beast had gnawed the fence railings and instinct had driven it to perform all sorts of antics as though to attract human beings to its predicament. The horse will recover.

"How I Took Up Clowning."

Large Audiences Hear Mrs. Shepard

rMs. Lulu Lovelace Shepard, representing the National Reform Association, who is here fighting Mormonism and whose addresses during the past few days have been heard by hundreds of Danville people, will appear for the last time at Schoolfield Y. M. C. A. tonight, when she expects to address a thousand people.

Her audiences have been steadily growing, owing chiefly to her fearless method in which she attacks what is construed as being a menace, owing to the gaining strenght of followers of this doctrine.

Last night she was heard at Shelton Memorial Presbyterian church which was packed to its doors. Her message was similar to that which has been given in other churches of the city and included the statement that the Mormons are developing a plan whereby a temple would be built here and that it would be made a regional headquarters for hte missionary work of the church, which is expanding each year as more and more men take the field and spread the beliefs of the Prophet Brigham Young. It was learned today from another source that negotiations for a lot on which to build a church were started about six months ago and are still pending.

Mrs. Shepard last night served notice of any Mormons who might be present at the meeting that she would not allow herself to be subjected to such an alleged performance as took place in the Baptist church when, the speaker asserted, eight Mormons occupied the first pew of the church and by grimaces and other facial contortions sought to distract her and to embarrass her in the delivery of her message.

She said that if there was anything approaching this she would ask that they be removed from the church. The meeting was a quiet one, although it is alleged there were members of the Mormon church in the audience. This, the speaker again reported was part of the plan of those antagonizing her, stating that she is being followed everywhere by representatives of the church, who are awaiting an opportunity to attack the authenticity of her statements. She said that she realized she was subject to a suit for damages for misstating the Mormon case.

Mrs. Sheaard went into the policy of baptizing the dead as outlined a few days ago. Mormons, she said, wear a secret form of underwear bearing cabalistic signs known only to the members of the church. A premium is put indirectly on childbirth in the Mormon faith by inculcating the idea that unless a woman has a husband, she cannot be lifted from the realms of purgatory. The speaker also declared that notwithstanding laws designed to prevent polygamy, it is being practised by the Mormons and that the plural wife system is as much in vogue as it was in the heyday of Brigham Young's reign.

She also went into details of reported plans whereby alleged wrongs done to Mormons are to be avenged at an opportune time, this being a sacred oath taken by all who become members.

Saturday is bargain day at Berman's, 234 Main Street.

More Cars Run But Patronage is Small

Ultimatum Results in Only One Man Returning—The Union Men Operating Jitneys With Rushing Business

Special to The Bee.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 20.—Union men said today that their ranks are unbroken, the ultimatum of the car company having resulted in only one of the old men teturning. The company has more cars in operation than at any time this week. While there are more cars, the operators are new men. No attempt is being made at schedule of cars, a thing impossible at this time. Travel on the cars is very small. The union men are operating a jitney line all over the city and they are having all the passengers they can handle, with thousands of private cars giving people a "lift" as they pass along the streets.

The papers of the city are demanding that the company shall agree to arbitrate the dispute, declaring that the interests of the city and the business of the community shall not be made to suffer by the refusal of the company to listen to offers to mediate. There is not the least sign of trouble, but a morning paper hopes that there will be no importation of strike breakers.

Report For January On Virginia Crops

The following summary of production by the Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates of the United States Department of Agriculture, Henry M. Taylor, agricultural statistician:

The total value of Virginia's principal crops for 1921 was 115,332,000, which is a decrease of 43 per cent. from the total value for 1920, and 38 per cent. less than in 1919, according to the final report of the U. S. Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates. The 21 crops that are recorded show a decrease of $85,081,000 from the 1920 value of $200,350,000, and of $157,317,000 from the 1919 crops valued at $272,649,000, which is the greatest ever recorded for the State. In 1919 these crops were valued at $79,800,000.

The otal value of the principal crops in the United States for 1921 was $5,675,877,000, against $9,075,-368,000 in 1920, and $13,507,000 in 1919.

The tremendous decrease in the value of Virginia crops is due to the decline in prices and the reducted yield caused by the very unfavorable season. The price of apples, cabbage, cotton, peaches, pears, white potatoes and sweet potatoes was higher on Dec 1st, 1921 than a year ago but the majority of the crops grown in the State show a decrease in price. The value per acre of all crops, except cabbage and cotton is less than in 1920.

The year 1921 was one of the most exer experienced. The late freezes disastrous crop years Virginia has ever experienced. The late freezes and frosts last spring almost completely destroyed the fruit crops and injured the wheat, then the severe drought during the summer and early fall cut the yield of all crops, especially of tobacco, corn, and peanuts. Virginia's standing among the states of the Union according to the value of all crops dropped from 21st place in 1920 to 26th in 1921, the latter, however, is the position occupied before the World War.

The total area in cultivation has been decreased slowly, since 1919, largely owing to the reduction in the wheat acreage, and the return to pasture of much land that had been cultivated during the war. The area of the principal crops in 1921 was 4,-438,000 acres, compared with 4,526,-300 acres in 1920, and 4,589,600 acres in 1919. Corn, oats, hay, sweet potatoes, and peanuts increased in acreage during the past year, while cotton, white potatoes, tobacco and wheat decreased. In general the tendency during the past year was to increase the acreage devoted to the so-called money crops and enlarge the acreage of the crops furnishing supplies for home consumption.

Corn is still the leading crop both in acreage and value. In order of the total value the leading crops are corn $31,757,000; tobacco $18,829,000 hay $16,461,000; white potatoes $16,-137,000, wheat $9,829,000, peanuts $8,326,000; and sweet potatoes $5,-225,000. According to the value per acre the crops rank as follows: Cabbage $268.00; onions $364.00, white potatoes $113.00; sweet potatoes $118.75; tobacco $112.75; sorghum for syrup $74.70; peanuts $42.46; cotton $37.72; hay $17.70; corn $17.25; and wheat $11.37.

DR. HALL EULOGIST OF LEE, OF JACKSON AND OF M. F. MAURY

Two Chapters of U. D. C. Arrange Appropriate Program.

Yesterday, the 115th anniversary of the birth of Robert E. Lee was commemorated by local ex-Confederates and the younger generations at the Memorial Mansion in an appropriate manner under the auspices of the Anne Eliza Johns and Danville chapters, United Daughters of the Confederacy, the remnant of the Cabell-Graves camp of Confederate veterans. The large double rooms utilized for the exercises were filled with an audience which embraced many of the veterans who are able to go out and large delegations of the faithful Daughters by whose efforts these recurrent anniversaries are appropriately observed.

Hon. Harry Wooding, a past grand commander of the Virginia Grand Camp of Confederate veterans and long-time mayor of the city, presided and introduced the participants in the brief program, the climax of which in point of historic interest was the address of Rev. J. Cleveland Hall, D. D., which was in the nature of a brief eulogy of Generals Lee and Jackson and Commodore Matthew F. Maury. Dr. Hall spoke without notes and showed an intimate familiarity with the lives of this trio of great Virginians.

The Rev. C. L. Garrison, of the Jefferson Street Christian church, offered an invocation appropriate to the occasion in which he besought divine blessing and guidance for the veterans and expressed gratitude for the exemplary lives of these men.

The musical feature of the program was a selection played by the Misses Conway, two brilliant young violinists, who were accompanied on piano by their mother, Mrs. A. C. Conway. Their fine performance was warmly applauded and commended.

A vocal duet which was included in the program had to be dispensed with, owing to the unexplained failure of the singers to appear, due doubtless to a misunderstanding.

Following the address of Dr. Hall, Mrs. John G. Witcher, a well known reader, brilliantly interpreted a dramatic selection from "The Last Days of Pompeii" and demonstrated unusual power. It was a difficult and trying test of sustained emotional interpretation and was handsomely given.

Dr. Hall was introduced with a graceful and affectionate tribute by Captain Wooding and responded with a fine summary of the high lights in the lives of Maury, Jackson and Lee. As a prelude to his review of their services and achievements, he related an experience some years ago in Jacksonville, Fla., when he was called upon by the commander of the Sons of Confederate veterans as the speaker of the occasion because it was anticipated that in a city wherein so many not native to the South were residing a typical southern speaker might say things which would excite criticism. Dr. Hall was selected as one of whom a conservative treatment of the historical theme might be expected. Instead his historical review of events leading to the war and his justification of the South were received with enthusiasm by the veterans and were commended by those who were of northern birth, one of whom secured the manuscript ostensibly for a Jacksonville paper and disappeared with it.

Dr. Hall's study of the Lee genealogy and his appreciation of the mother of the soldier and of the great chieftain's wife were warmed with the speaker's admiration of their lives. He attributed the greatness of Lee as soldier, gentleman and Christian in large measure to the lofty lineage and exalted teaching under which he was reared. A feature of his appreciation of Lee, the incomparable, was his sympathetic portrayal of the early home life of the future great commander. Turning from a sympathetic portrayal of the cavalier Lee to a survey and estimate of the puritan, Jackson, he drew a graphic word picture of the thunderbolt of war and the strategist who had puzzled and confounded Banks, Fremont, Shields, McDowell and others in his dazzling valley campaign and ascribed to him an unique genius as a soldier and a purity of life which merited the admiration of his associates. Dr. Hall's appreciation of Maury, Virginian-Tennesseean naval officer, hydrographer, inventor, geographer and Christian gentleman was reverential and enthusiastic. A noteworthy incident of it was his remark upon the fact that Maury's splendid series of text-books on geography had been inexplicably banished from the schools of his native State. The speaker was warmly congratulated on his admirably condensed appreciation of three such monumental lives.

After the address and reading, the ladies of the two chapters served an icecourse to the veterans and all present. They had also attractively decorated walls, window spaces, chandeliers and mantels with Confederate flags of various types and sizes.

Blacksmith-Prince Keeps Job At Forge

PITTSBURG, Jan. 20.—Torn between the choice of journeying to Poland, there to claim his heritage as Prince Michael von Urbanski, or disdaining all the glamor of royalty and remaining here as a satisfied blacksmith at McKeesport, plain Mike Urbanski, legitimate claimant of the Polish title of prince, residing at Fite Station, Versailles township, considers the question as he works daily at his forge.

The McKeesport prince's right to the claim of royalty was established through the efforts of Congressman M. Clyde Kelly. He is the father of seve nsons, two of whom have risked their lives for this country in the World War. One of the two, Walter, a veteran of the Eighty-second division, told of his father's claim to the title of prince.

About a century ago, according to the son, his great-grandfather was driven out of Poland for participatin a revolution against the czar of Russia. All his property was confiscated. His grandfather also was compelled to flee the country, and he sought refuge in West Prussia where Michael was born.

In 1890 Michael, with his wife and three children, came to America. Learning of his royal ancestors through papers which had been secreted, Michael instituted a search for proof. Through the American consulate in Warsaw the latter was found at Regierungsbezirk, Manenwerder, formerly part of Prussia, but now included in Poland's territory.

Meanwhile Prince Michael, toiling in the mill, cannot make up his mind whether to visit the land of his ancestors and establish his claim or not. But his seven sons know their minds and voted unanimously to remain in the United States. Besides Walter, the other sons are Alexander, Frank, Arthur, Leo, Clarence and Michael. There is also a pretty daughter, Clara.

MEMORIAL MANSION MOVEMENT HISTORY

Ladies Organizations Which Contributed to Purchase Surprised By Status

The ladies of the two chapters of the Daughters of the Confederacy, the Wednesday Afternoon club and other organizations using the rooms furnished by them in the Memorial Mansion, the title to which is now vested in the city, are naturally greatly perturbed by the efforts of the Council to subject them to rent for use and occupancy of the quarters years ago set apart for these purposes. The proposal that rental be charged against these patriotic, historical and literary organizations has developed not only amazement, but a form of resentment which is likely to bring about an inquiry into the legal phases of the matter.

It will probably be recalled by many that when the old Sutherlin property, as it was long known, was about to be partitioned and a lot with Main street frontage had actually been sold as a residence site, the late R. A. James through this newspaper inaugurated an effort to save the property from partition and to secure its dedication as a shrine of history. The appeal was made and pressed with such earnestness that the community was aroused and the response was prompt and generous. A large proportion of the purchase price was subscribed by citizens and a still larger contribution made through the efforts of the Confederate organizations and other societies of ladies to whose use and occupancy it was urged the property be made perpetually available. The movement did not attain its ostensible goal of paying the entire purchase price by popular subscription and collaboration of beneficiary organizations, but it did subserve its urgent and immediate purpose of saving the beautiful property from partition and preventing the razing of the beautiful old structure which adorns the site. Subsequently the city was induced to take over the property and to dedicate it, as all assumed at that time, to historical uses. With this idea, the various organizations were assigned rooms, and these were furnished and equipped by them for their uses.

It is pointed out that the city could not then nor later have purchased the property at the figure with which it supplemented the popular contribution nucleus of the sale price. Furthermore, the city derived from its proportion of the purchase price the site of the up-town fire department station and ingress an degress as well as the opportunity to dedicate the acreage to use as a public park. The sudden reversal of policy by the city with respect to the property has caused almost universal surprise and some inquiries as to whether the financial exigencies of the city required it to undertake at this time to make it a revenue-producing property.

Trend of Prices For Good Tobacco Has Been Upward

Contrary to the usual post-Christmas status of the local tobacco market, it is noteworthy that the trend of prices for good grades of leaf is distinctly upward and that the average since the New Year resumption of sales are liable to exceed those attained before the holidays suspension. The explanation of this unusual demand for tobacco is not clear, but it is worthy of note that prices this week for offering on the warehouse floors have been suprisingly good. Cutters and wrappers of good grades have sold at $75 and ranged upward in a number of cases to $90. Smokers of good type are also in demand, and the indications are that those who marketed their entire crop before Christmas are not unlikely to be losers by their course.

It cannot be ascertained whether the leading buying firms operating on this market have received any instructions from their headquarters to increase their purchases of bright tobacco or not, but this is believed to be the explanation. Whether their stock of wrappers and cutters of the better grades are unequal to their needs or not, [illegible] upon by many observers of the trend of the market that prices have not been better for good qualities at any time during the current sales-year. The idea is hinted at by some that the big buying firms may be trying to fore-stall the co-oporative marketing plan, but so far as developed no evidence of such a course is available. It may be a manifestation of the operation of the economic law of supply and demand and of active competition among the large concerns for these quantities of leaf.

Teutons Building Giant Zeppelin To Fly Over Ocean

BERLIN, Jan. 20.—Within a year Americans will see flying over their heads a Zeppelin of the type that threw London and Paris into terror during the night raids in the war. The Zeppelin will be owned by the United States.

The great dirigible now being constructed for the United States at Fredrichshaven work will fly across the Atlantic in about a year, Herr Ecker, director of the Zeppelin works, says.

With the completion of this ship, the Germans must demolish the plant at Fredrichshaven under the terms of the Versailles treaty. They hope to persuade America to open regular trans-Atlantic dirigible service.

"We hope that our arrival in America will stimulate the erection of a Zeppelin works ovre there," said Capt. Upham, representative of the American government in the negotiations. "We are doing our utmost to construct a masterpiece. It will cost approximately $1,000,000, and require about a year's work."

Women now possess full suffrage rights in 21 countries.

Usefulness of the Genuine Thedford's Black-Draught Liver Medicine Has Long Been Known

Yale, Okla.—The usefulness of Thedford's Black-Draught liver medicine has long been known to Mrs. A. B. Leach, of Route 1, this place, who says:

"About twenty-eight years ago, we were libing near Belleville, Kans. I was in very poor health. I would eat, but it didn't see mto satisfy or do me any good. I was bloated: felt oppression at the stomach. The fullness in the right side was awful

"I did not feel like doing a thing. Eating even made me tired. I sat around, feeling so miserable. One day I looked in the glass and my complexion scared me—not the color of blood in my face. My ears looked waxy; skin flabby, pale. I was in a bad fix.

"I had been taking medicine, as I was told it was inactivity of my liver that was causing this trouble. About this time—nithing having done me any good—I began to look for a cure.

"I read of Thedford's Black-Draught, and my husband went to the druggist for it . . . I began its use, and my! how I began to improve. My appetite became more normal. Gradually the bloating disappeared, and my skin cleared up. I began to see marked improvement, and from then till now I have praised Black-Draught as the best liver medicine made.

"I keep Black-Draught ~~in the house.~~ and have used it ever since. Have lived here in Oklahoma on my farm for twenty years and regard Black-Draught as my family liver medicine, and expect to keep it for years to come."

Muratore In Huff Quits the Opera

Renouned Tenor Comes Out Second Best Following a Class With the Temperamental Garden.

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—Lucien Muratore and his wife, Lina Cavalieri, have bumped their own temperamental equipment against the Garden variety, with the result that they are out of the Chicago Opera Company.

While the great tenor has admiration for Mary Garden as an artist as directress of grand opera he cannot "see" her. Cavalieri furnished the little drama for the Muratore curtain. Miss Garden, it seems, does not rank the tenor's wife high as a singer. Cavalieri was scheduled to make her debut on the second night of the season. She was scratched and has not sung yet.

Muratore and his wife will start for New York tomorrow.

"I regret very much to leave Chicago," said the tenor, "for I love the Chicago people. They have indeed been kind to me. But I must say goodby to Chicago.

"For Miss Garden as an artist I have the highest admiration. But as directress of the company in which I have to sing—never!"

Muratore politely refused to discuss the so-called Garden-Cavalieri feud, dismissing it with a shrug of his shoulders.

"I do not like the way she spoke to me," he is quoted as saying, referring to Miss Garden. "She is too capricious. One day she is nice. Next day she will not even say 'good morning' —just heavy looks That jars my nerves and spoils my singing.

"She changes her mind too often. But that is a woman's right. And I am not the only one. There are other artists who are not satisfied. But I am only speaking for myself. They perhaps, will have volumes to say.

Muratore holds a unique contract with the company. Under the terms his exclusive rights to certain roles are recognized. When he is indisposed, or for any other reason doesn't care to sing, he has the privilege, under the contract, of naming his understudy.

On several occasions, it has been charged, he has taken advantage of this clause to prevent his rivals from appearing in his favorite roles, and assigning them to artists unfitted both by temperament and vocal equipment for the part. Exercise of this prerogative deprived Miss Garden of authority to cast operas, and is said to have resulted in several mediocre performances this season.

Then there is gossip of a fuss over finances. When Mr. Muratore submitted his statement for the present season it was reported among its items, in addition to his contracted salary, were hotel bills for himself ~~his wife and his valet.~~ In cutting expenses for next year, the story proceeds, the financial experts of the company notified the French artist that in the future his pay from the Chicago company would cover only a flat salary. Mr. Muratore objected.

The trouble over the tenor roles on which Muratore had a lien put Riccardo Martin and Edward Johnson out of business. While Johnson has sung once, Riccardo Martin and Forest Lamont only three times. Muratore has appeared in nineteen performances out of twenty scheduled. His salary for each performance was $3,000, making $57,000 for his season's work.

"The loss of Muratore would be a blow, of course," one of the men interested in the business affairs of the company said, "but Chicago will have opera without him if the plan of obtaining the needed 250 guarantors is successful."

The tremendous losses of the season and the withdrawal of Muratore is not helping the drive for the 250 additional guarantors at $1,000 each. The tenor says he has unsigned contracts for a South American trip and one from the Metropolitan Company.

Bill Permitting New Chamberlin Hotel in Congress

Psyche in galoshes and a sou'wester.

That's "The Censroed Number" of the Ghost, the snappy eGorge Washington University publication which aroused a storm last month when Dean Howard L. Hodgkins refused to permit circulation of the Christmas issue.

In every paragraph, in every cartoon a veiled "crack" is made at the critics, though in perfectly frank and humorous fashion. The magazine opens wit ha cartoon of the "Censor Office," in which the editor sits, with a pile of censor slips at his elbow while vraious young ladies are shown past his desk for deletion.

There is a page of "censored joke," (passed by the bored of sense, sir) with the warning: "No jokes on this page will be explainde." A sample:

Bill—Hello, Ed.

Ed—Hello, Bill.

Bill—How are you, Ed?

Ed—Fine Bill, thanks.

And editorial comments on the late furore, as follows:

"For Christmas the Ghsot sort of got something in its stocking in the shape of publicity, and now that the 'staff is stiff' from posing for photos and hoarse from proclaiming that there are no more copies of the last issue, we're wondering who to send to jail next month to keep us in the limelight. For a while it appeared as if we had coughed once too much and were due for a horizonal ride to the family lot."

His Wedding Off, He Sues Minister

Latter Admits Advising Girl Not to Go Through With Scheduled Ceremony.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Jan. 19.—The Rev. W. H. Crandall, pastor of the Simpson M. E. Church, Scranton, took the stand in his defense today to answer charges of William E. Courtright of Dunmore, who alleges, in a slander suit for $5,000 damages, that the preacher prevented his marriage to Miss Eleanor Warner of Ashley, after a date had been fixed for the wedding and the services of the Rev. Mr. Crandall engaged.

Courtright charges that almost on the eve of the scheduled wedding his fiancee came to him and declared the Rev. Mr. Crandall had told her Courtright was not physically fit for wedlock. The statements of the minister, so Courtright charges, caused Miss Warner to call the wedding off.

On the stand today the Rev. Mr. Crandall admitted giving the girl advice. He said he was her pastor and that what advice he gave her was at her request and without malice. The minister said that in April, 1917, Miss Warner came to his study to inquire what he knew about Courtright and his family.

He denied he told Miss Warner that Courtright suffered from a pernicious disease, that the plaintiff was crazy and that if any children were born of their union they would be idiots. He admitted telling the girl that members of the Courtright family were crippled and suffered from sickness, and that as her pastor he believed it his duty to point out this matter. He said he told the girl that it would be serious for her to marry a man with such a family history.

NAVAL LIMITATION TREATY UNDERGOES FURTHER CHANGES

Now Complete Except for Pacific Fortifications Feature.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The five power treaty for limitation of naval armament has undergone further changes in the coruse of a lnal overhauling by experts, and it now is complete except for the article establishing a fortifications status quo in the Pacific.

When a solution of the fortification problem will be possible is regarded by some delegates as a dubious quastion, but in other quarters there still is hope that a plenary session to announce publicly conclusion of the treaty may be held by early next week.

By some delegations the proposal is put forward that the troublesome article be dropped from the treaty altogether, and either attached to the four-power Pacific treaty already signed or embodied in a separate convention to be drawn later. Thus far, however, that suggestion has remained in an informal stage, and conference leaders are going ahead on the assumption that the provision will remain in the naval pact.

In the light of renewed instruction from Tokio to the Japanese delegation, the naval drafting experts will meet again tomorrow to try to work out a new phrasing of the article. It was indicated tonight that the Japanece advices fro mhome were not entirely conclusive, but hope was expressed in an early solution.

It was revealed today that in the final revision of other portions of the treaty, modifications had been agreed to in the limitations on aircraft carriers and on methods of scrapping, and that provision had been made which would require two years' notice from any power desiring to terminate the convention. The termination stipulation is applicable only after the initial 15-year period of the treaty's duration, and it is provided that should one signatory desire to terminate the treaty after that period it will automatically become inoperative as among the others.

Other sections of the text remain virtually unchanged, the principal provisions for limiting capital ship strength and the size and armament of individual vessels being incorporated in their original form. She regulations for governing use of submarines, the prohibition against poison gas, and the airplane resolution are not included, but will be embodied in a separate treaty.

In the secton dealing with airplane carriers, the total tonnage limitations agreed to by the five powers are retained in the final draft, but the proposal to limit individual carriers to 27,000 tons each is modified so as to permit each signatory to construct two of 33,000 tons each. It is provided specifically that these may be obtained by conversion of battleships now under construction but which wouln otherwise go the scrap heap.

In addition, France and Italy each will be permitted to retain two of the capital ships listed for sirapping in 1921, for conversion into training ships. For the same purpose the United States, GGreGaGt GBGriGtGa United States, Great Britain and Japan each is to be permitted to retain one prescribed capital ship each but in all cases measures are provided to prevent the vessels so retained from becoming again active fighting units.

Notifies Germany She Must Fulfill Her Obligations

Premier Poincare Says Versailles Treaty Must Be Carried Out.

PARIS, Jan. 19.—(By the Associated Press.)—Raymond Poincare, president of the Republic during the war and now premier of France, with the French chamber practically unanimous behind him, served notice on Germany today that so long as he held office in conducting the destinies of his country Germany must fulfill the obligations she entered upon at Versailles, and may expect no leniency.

The Versailles treaty binds us to our allies," he said, "but is binds Germany to us all. It must be carried out." These were his final words before leaving the tribune after replying to various interpellations. His pronouncement summed up the whole programme.

Never since the Germans threatened Chateau Thierry, when Clemenceau appeared before the chamber to tell France that the war was not yet lost, and there was still hope of victory, has a French premier received such an ovation as greeted M. Poincare today, when he presented before the deputies the ministerial declaration. He pleaded for national union, and except for the socialists and communists who automatically oppose any and all French governments, the French Parliament was as solid behind its government this evening as when the Germans crossed the frontier in 1914.

Alert and active, all the pent-up and suppressed energy stored up during seven passive years in the Elysee palace radiated from his physically small frame, M. Poincare instilled into the chamber the spirit which has been lacking since Clemenceau's departure. Germany must honor her signature at Versailles, declared the premier, not only wit hrespect to reparations, which was a matter of "life or death to France," but also disarmament and the punishment of the war criminals.

The premier openly declared that should Germany fail to carry out either of the two undertakings it would be considered as a violation of the Versailles treaty, giving France complete freedom of action. He advocated the virtual elimination of the Supreme Council, with reversion to former diplomatic channels in dealings between nations, with the supreme council called upon from time to time to confirm agrements, rather than to negotiate "them." This was another radical departure from France's foreign policy.

That part of M. Poincare's declaration dealing with reparations received the almost unanimous approval of the chamber, while some uneasiness was noticeable when he reached the questions of disarmament and the war criminals. Hoots, howls and insults came from the communists, and these were shouts for the senatorial high court to try him on the charge of being responsible for the war. To these M. Poincare retorted:

"The nation, which is the highest court, would acquit me, realizing that I did my duty."

"But," pointing at the communists, "I know others who would not escape."

Discussing Germany's ability to pay, the premier said:

"Her [illegible] enormous dividends, her factories are in full activity. In a word, her economic strength grows every day, and if the state itself is in ruins, the nation enriches itself. It was in the name of the German nation that the Versailles treaty was accepted.

"France, in defending her rights, defends international accords, and refutes in no way the suggestion of selfishness. France wishes to see Europe and the whole world recovered from the painful unrest from which they suffer, but general economic reorganization depends first upon the restoration of the devastated regions.

"The reparations problem is the key to all others, and if Germany fails to keep her engagements it will be necessary to consider, after seeking the advice of the reparations commission, what measures to adopt. The first will certainly be necessary guarantees for the establishment of efficient control over the budget, the remission of paper and exportation.

"On the other hand, so long as other conditions of the Versailles treaty, such a sdisarmament and the punishment of war criminals, are not fulfilled, we still will be compelled to keep in operation the penalties provided, and if necessary, take others."

In closing a vigorous speech, he alluded to the accusation that he was responsible for the non-disarmament of Germany, because, being president, he had the power of making treaties.

"You will look in vain at the peace treaty for my signature," he explained, "but what was omitted then, can be done now."

Lord Fairfax and Miss McKelvie Wed

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Lord Fairfax and Miss Maud McKelvie, only daughter of James McKelvie, a wealthy Scotch coal operator, were married today at the Church of St. James, in Picadilly. Captain John Fielden, a close friend of the bridegroom, was best man. A large number of guests attended a brilliant reception after the ceremony in a fashionable West End hotel.

Lord Fairfax was born in America but is a naturalized British subject. He is the twelfth descendant of his family to hold a Scotch peerage. He proved his claim to the title before the committee of privileges of the House of Lords in 1908.

He is a descendant of a brother of the sixth Lord Fairfax, who settled in the colony of Virginia on a grant of land received from his mother. A daughter of the sixth peer married brother of George Washington.

PT. NO EARLY

GLASGOW, Scotland, Jan. 19.—(By the Associated Press.)—Austen Chamberlain government leader in the House of Commons, today dispelled any idea of an early general election by telling a conference of Scottish Unionists the government had decided that until the legal establishment of the Irish provisional government and its equipment had been completed there could be no sort of dissolution of Parliament.

This decision, said Mr. Chamberlain, had been unanimously concurred in by Prime Minister Lloyd George and his colleagues.

Chemist's Device Making Cotton Fireproof Is Expected to Result In Saving Growers Millions of Dollars

Science has made another valuable contribution to agriculture. With test tubes and retorts a southern chemist has concocted a solution that will eventually put an end to the heavy losses of cotton from fire and country damage in th southern states. Cotton growers are finding that by throwing their cotton bales into tanks as they come from the gin and dipping them in this chemical solution they will be able to save millions of dollars.

Dipping the gin-baled cotton protects it against both ignition by flash and spark fires and damage by vegetable rot, country damage that is so destructive in the south. The dipping does not injure the strength of cotton fiber or its spinning or dyeing qualities. Probably no other one thing since the invention of the gin, has meant so much to the cotton growers of the south.

An idea of what this means is apparent when it is considered that the loss caused by country damage alone amounts to more than $250,000 a year. This does not include the enormous loss caused by fire every year. Government tests show that bales—each one weighs 500 pounds—lose from 80 to 410 pounds as a result of attacks by vegetable rot. After they have been treated they may be stored on the ground or in warehouses without loss.

This means much to the northern manufacturer, since the cotton grower is indirectly a heavy buyer of goods made in the northern and middle western states, and the savings of this enormous annual loss adds much to the buying power of the south.

Insurance rates have also been lowered on cotton that is protected from fire and country damage, and waehouse costs will be lessened if the bales are treated.

The chemist's discovery will probably result in revolutionizing the cotton industry because it will not only effect great savings for the producer by protecting his crop from the two most important evils—fire and country damage—but it will lower his insurance rates and relieve the great problem of transporting cotton in box cars.

Cotton is highly inflammable and when untreated it must be hauled in box cars—well back from the engine—and cleats must be nailed on the doors to prevent ignition of the bales by engine sparks. This ties up hundreds of box cars on the southern roads that are needed to move grain in the corn belt.

Treated bales may be safely loaded on flat or stock cars, with no danger of catching fire or being damaged in wet weather. When this treatment of cotton becomes general flat cars will be used exclusively and the box cars will be released for grain. This will tend to lessen transportation costs and the loading and unloading problem will be greatly simplified.

Cotton carrying railroads are heavy losers when the cotton is not protected from fire, because engine sparks cause most of the costly conflagrations. This is due to the fact that the greatest concentration of bales must necessarily be at the points of rail shipment. Single sparks from locomotives have started uncontrollable fires that cost the cotton industry millions of dollars.

Up to the present time the losses due to rot have been accepted in a helpless sort of way as a necessary evil because there has been no way to prevent them.

Approximately 75 per cent of the world's annual requirement of cotton is produced in the United States. It requires in round numbers $1,000,000,000 to finance the cotton crop grown in the south every year. With the cotton bale the collateral, it is quite natural for the bankers of the south to be vitally interested in the way it is handled and protected, and they are vigorously urging growers to treat their cotton because it increases the safety standards of their principal security.

After the Department of Agriculture at Washington found that the chemical would prevent country damage and render the cotton immune from flash fire and spark hazards and did not injure the fibre the American Cotton Association recommended that growers and others handling this great national and internatial product dip their cotton.

Northern farmers have little conception of the reckless and careless manner in which cotton is handled in the fields and at the ginneries. Because it is so slovenly handled by traditional methods that have been handed down to the planters, there is great need of protective measures to have this important crop. Cotton is second only to corn in aggregate value of domstic agricultural production and is America's largest export commodity. It exceeds the value of wheat by many millions of dollars. Only 13 per cent of wheat and 2 per cent of corn are exported, while 65 per cent of the cotton goes to foreign countries.

In spite of the important place that America's cotton crop holds in this and foreign countries it is still put on the market wrapped in the garb similar to the one used before the civil war, and until recently little attempt has been made to improve conditions under which it is handled in the cotton fields or on the market.

WHISKY NECESSARY MEDICAL AGENT THINK PHYSICIANS

Fifty-One Per Cent. Who Answered Questionnaire So State.

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—(By the Associated Press.)—Whisky is a necessary therapeutic agent in the practice of medicine, according to 51 per cent of the 31,115 doctors who answered the questionnaire issued by the Journal of the American Medical Association. Forty-nine per cent disagreed.

On the question of the medical value of beer and wine, there was not such a close division. Seventy-four per cent of the physicians said beer was not necessary and 68 per cent said wine had no value in their practice.

The journal sent questionnaires to 53,900 physicians of whom 58 per cent replied.

Tabulated by States, the vote shows 19 States and the District of Columbia, favoring the use of whisky and 29 States opposed to it, while every State returned a negative vote on the beer and wine questions.

The doctors favoring the use of whisky are in the majority in cities, where 58 per cent voted for the liquor. In the rural districts 54 per cent voted against it. Tabulated by districts, the North Atlantic and South Atlantic States favored whisky, while the North Central and South Central and Western States gave a majority against it.

Tabulated by cities, the 50 largest cities showed 5,329 doctors, or 60 per cent of those voting, favoring whisky and 3,535 opposed to it. Only 32 per cent of the city physicians favored beer and 48 per cent of them favored wine.

Jersey City, N. J., and Scranton, Pa., were the only cities in the country where a majority of the doctors voted that beer was a necessary therapeutic agent, while seven cities favored wine.

Twenty-two per cent of those replying or 6,432 doctors, said they knew of instances in which "unnecessary suffering or death had resulted from the enforcement of prohibition."

In New York city only 1.7 per cent of the doctors favored more than 100 prescription blanks every three months. In Philadelphia an increase was favored by 1.4 per cent, while Chicago and Detroit showed 3.6 per cent voting for more blanks.

LEE'S BIRTHDAY IS OBSERVED IN STATE

RICHMOND, Jan. 19.—In Virginia today was observed the 114th anniversary of the birth of General Robert E. Lee. Tribute also was paid to General "Stonewall" Jackson. All public schools in the city as well as all banks, State and municipal offices were closed.

Eulogies in the State Legislature were given by Senators Cannon, Early and Leedy. Colonel D. M. Pattie, of Rappahannock, aged 76, doorkeeper of the Senate, and a Confederate veteran who served under General Lee, recited "The Farewell of General Lee to His Army."

Declaring that the campaigns of the South's great chieftain will ever remain miracles of military history, Charles H. Brough, former governor of Arkansas, in an address before the 11th annual convention of the Virginia Good Roads Association, paid a tribute to the life, character and achievements of General Lee. "Lee was the finest flower of a civilization that rapidly is passing away, the knightliest figure of an heroic age," he said. Lee's military prowess as chieftain of the Confederacy is one of the priceless relics of Southern history. If Lee's personality was great, his career and character were even greater."

Senate G. O. P. In Party Conference Agree on Plans

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Senate Republicans, in party conference approved today the allied debt re-funding bill with the addition of a provision that the interest rate on the refunded bonds should be not less than that fixed in the Liberty loan acts authorizing the loans to the allied nations. This rate is 4 3-4 per cent or 1-4 of 1 per cent less than the rate stipulated in the obligations of the debtor nations now held by the treasury.

This was the only change in the bill a reported by the finance committee and which the conference approved.

Party leaders said it was the plan to take the bill up in the Senate on Monday and to press for its passage. The Republicans already have voted to take up a soldier bonus bill as soon as the refunding measure is disposed of. It was said that there would be further party conferences to determine a policy as to the method of raising the necessary funds to finance the bonus.

Thomas Unshaken In Testimony At His Murder Trial

Thought He Was Being Held Up When He Shot A. J. Allen.

CONCORD, N. C., Jan. 19.—Throughout a grilling and lengthy cross-examination, O. G. Thomas, on trial here on a charge of murder in connection with the killing of Arthur J. Allen, at Kannapolis last October, stood unshaken in his testimony that when he fired three shots at a man who accosted him on the fatal night he did not know it was Allen, but that he believed an attempt was being made to hold up and rob him, and that he had about $800 in his pocket which he had collected that day in connection with the sale of an automobile.

Thomas was on the stand practically three hours, and his testimony was the over-shadowing feature of the fourth day of the trial. However, many other witnesses were heard, including a number introduced to testify to the good character of the defendant, who has been well known for years as a Charlotte automobile salesman.

Rebuttal testimony is expected to be offered by the state tomorrow, and indications tonight were that the case would go to the jury some time Saturday.

Thomas, testimony followed in all essential details that which he gave in habeas corpus proceedings in Charlotte, last fall and that given yesterday by Mrs. Robert Lowe, of Kannapolis, who was with the defendant a tthe time of the shooting. He testified that the man he shot had approached the side of the automobile in which he and Mrs. Lowe were riding and ordered him to throw up his hands, whereupon he seized a pistol which lay in the woman's lap and fired, three times, but did not take aim and did not know he had killed the man. He explained that the pistol was one he found in the pocket of the automobile, which was a borrowed car, when he started from the Cline boarding house to the residence of Oscar Overcash, whom he wanted to see on business and near whose home the shooting occurred.

Death rate in England has declined 50 per cent. since 1870.

You know, the more I learn about Heekin's Baking Powder the more enthusiastic I get about it. Just listen to this:

There is one ingredient in Heekin's of which 65 carloads are bought every year. The Heekin Company could buy this ingredient for two thousand dollars a carload less if they were willing to sacrifice the quality of Heekin's only a trifle. But they won't do it.

No wonder a better baking powder cannot be made. Yet Heekin's costs less than any other that even approaches it in quality. This is because The Heekin Company for years have been satisfied with a small profit themselves.

My assistants and I have been using Heekin Baking Powder for some time. And we have never had one failure with it. I know that any woman can get successful baking results with Heekin's.

There is no stronger or purer baking powder made. And Heekin's retains its strength to the last spoonful. No foreign ingredients are added to create an unnatural effervescence or give a false impression of quality. Heekin's is all baking powder and nothing else. No wonder it is the favorite with thousands of women.

Your baking is guaranteed when you use Heekin's. For if anything you bake does not turn out to your entire satisfaction the price of the full can of baking powder, and the price of the ingredients in whatever you bake will be returned to you. TWO RESOLUTIONS ON RAILROADS IN CHINA ADOPTED

Mutual Pledge Against Discriminatory Rail Practices.

WASHINGTON Jan. 19.—(By the Associated Press)—Pushing forward rapidly toward the conclusion of its labors, the Far Eastern committee of the Washington conference today recorded a mutual pledge against discriminatory railroad practices in China and then gave general approval to a proposal that the whole multitude of treaties and understandings relating to China's interests be published to the world.

The suggestion for a show-down of all Chinese commitments came from the American delegation, was promptly supported by the Chinese, and after a discussion received in turn the tentative endorsement of the British, Japanese and French. A formal resolution embodying the discussion is to be considered at a meeting of the committee tomorrow, but it is doubtful whether the publication will be accomplished before the Washington conference ends.

In expressing assent most of the plenipotentiaries declared that virtually all such agreements to which their respective governments were parties already had been made public and the Japanese interposed the suggestion that there might be much difficulty in making the list complete because of engagements of various private individuals and corporations of which the governments had no knowledge. The resolution is expected to provide that each government make known whatever information it has regarding the separate agreements entered into by its nationals.

Two resolutions regarding Chinese railroads were adopted before the committee reached the topic of existing commitments, the last on the Chinese section of its agenda. One of them, presented by the British, binds all of the nine nations represented to permit no "unjust discrimination" in railroad rates or facilities in China, and the other, an American proposal, records the hope of the powers that Chinese railroads may be developed toward a unified national system under Chinese control, but with whatever foreign assistance may be found advisable.

Both the resolutions were approved with only slight changes from the form in which they were introduced yesterday, but that relating to discriminatory practices was qualified by its author, Sir Auckland Geddes, so that it will apply only to "unfair" discrimination. It provides that any case which seems to involve a violation of the principle of equality of treatment maye be referred "for consideration and report" to the board of reference to be created under the new open-door program.

The Chinese expressed satisfaction with the two agrements, declaring their particular gratification over the inclusion of the pledge not to "permit" unfair discrimination. In the past, it was pointed out, all the roads operating in China have denied flatly that they were guilty of discriminatory practices, and efforts to gather sufficient facts to prove otherwise have failed.

What may be the effect of the committee's action on the Manchurian line which is under Japanese control and which the Chinese have charged is being used to promote the interests of the Tokio government, was not touched upon. It was suggested, however, that the practices of the road have been held to be "fair" by Japanese officials, in that it was being used as a legitimate means of developing Manchuria industrially.

Discussion of the subject of existing commitments in China was opened by Secretary Hughes with a suggestion that it would be of great aid if he powers represented had full knowledge of all agreements which might hereafter be invoked in any international discussion of Chinese problems. The present conference, he added, offered opportunity for presentation of these commitments and [illegible] any discussion which such a presentation might suggest.

Speaking for China Dr. Koo endorsed the suggestion for an exchange of information among the powers and went on to propose that [illegible] agreements thus acknowledged should be made public.

[illegible] spokesman also expressed a hope that after the treaties [illegible] been laid before the conference there would be a decision as [illegible] of each. On that [illegible] there seemed to be [illegible] in the minds of the delegates tonight, an American spokesman indicating that the formal resolution probably would provide for submission of the documents to the secretary general of the conference on a fixed date after the conference adjourns.

For the British Sir Auckland Geddes said his delegation was fully prepared to publish all the commitments of the British government in China. The vast majority of them, he declared, already had been published. If the list were to include all the trade treaties which [illegible] touch on China, however, he suggested that some time would be required to make certain that the canvas was accurate.

Baron Shidehara in turn expressed Japan's general approval declaring it would not be difficult to give a list of all the commitments to which the Japanese government was party but that it might not be so easy for any government to ascertain the precise nature and terms of engagements entered into by its nationals. He added that he assumed the suggestion referred only to those agreements to which the governments themselves were parties.

Agricultural Bloc In Va. Assembly

Silently Organized, It is Powerfully Entrenched In Both Richmond Bodies.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 20.—Patterned largely after the movement in congress and designed, according to Delegate George B. Keezell, of Rockbridge, "to see that the agricultural interests of Virginia get a square deal," there has been silently organized in the general assembly here what is being spoken of as an "agricultural bloc," with Senator J. Brad Beverley, representing the Eleventh senatorial district, as president.

This body, composed largely of farmer members and of senators and delegates interested in agriculture, is known to have held one or two meetings, to have organized, and to have appointed, or to contemplate appointing a steering committee. Within a short while members of the "bloc" will be holding frequent caucuses. Twenty-six members of the organization are from the lower branch, while its strength in the senate numbers seven.

Delegate Keezell, of Rockingham who is said to be prominent in the councils of the new organization, when approached today, said the word "block," as applied to the organization, is a misnomer. He said the object of the association of members, who are banding together, is to see that farmer legislation receives appropriate attention, that the association is not formed to attempt legislative domination, but as a "bulwark against any unfair or ungenerous efforts on the part of members or interests inimical to the best welfare of the agriculturists."

In the senate several members admitted having been approached by members or parties interested in the "agricultural organization of the "agricultural bloc," but, like members of the house, there appears a disinclination on the part of such senators as have been interviewed to go into any minute detail of the movement. The organizing seems to have been going on for some days. Hence members also are reticent when approached.

Enough was learned today to lead to the idea that the "association of farmer members," "agricultural bloc" or whatever designation may be applicable, will fight increased taxation, attempt to cut to the bone anything which looks like unnecessary appropriation, and will use its efforts to conserve as far as possible what it conceives to be the best interests of the State as whole.

Members of the organization appear altogether sanguine that they will within a few days muster an imposing number of the members of the legislature, sufficient at any time to wield a balance of power, if not to actually constitute a clear majority. The whole enterprise has been quietly undertaken and pushed.

The "agricultural bloc," call it by whatever name one desires, is no longer a theory, but an actuality, in the present general assembly of Virginia.

It is understood that several of the most influential members in both branches are prominently identified with the movement and are numbered with the organization. It is possible that a platform of principles and special legislation may be announced by the "bloc" within a few days.

"Grasping Companies" To Be Regulated

(By The Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Jan 20.—Determination to lay before the National Agricultural Conference next week "the thoroughly selfish and grasping attitude of many companies of different sorts which loan money on farm mortgages," was announced today by Secretary Wallace.

NEW YORK, Jan 19.—Gulf States Steel, a comparatively obscure stock which has furnished Wall street and the stock market with a new sensation in the past few days [illegible] its meteoric career today, making an advance of almost 20 points to 85. It closed 3 points lower on what looked like selling for profits. At its maximum Gulf States showed a [illegible] of about 35 points from [illegible] final price.

After the close of [illegible] it was gossiped about on the Stock Exchange that the short interest in Gulf States was negotiating with holders of the stock for a private settlement on terms considerably above [illegible] highest quotation.

Hoover Warns Coming Strike

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Warning of an impending general strike in the country's coal industry was given today by Secretary Hoover who declared that the public should know what to expect when the national agreements covering the wages and working conditions of miners expire April 1.

"The stage," Mr. Hoover said, "appears to be set for a strike in the bituminous coal fields about the last of March."

Mr. Hoover did not indicate what the government's plans for meeting such an emergency would be, but said there had been no conference between representatives of the administration and the men and operators for about six weeks with no further discussions troverted questions scheduled at this looking toward adjustment of contime by the government.

While he did not discuss what the government's attitude might be in the event of a general coal strike, the impression was gained that the administration was regarding without undue alarm, the possible approach of such a strike situation.

As the time has approached for the construction of new wage scales and working contracts between the miners and employers in the union fields, negotiations have twice been set on foot between the mine workers and hte employers, with Mr. Hoover as the representative of the government taking a tentative part. Operators in the union fields, declraing that non-union coal producing territory has been taking an increasing proportion of the business, have announced their purpose of reducing wages when the contract expires, while John L. Lewis, as president of the United Mine Workers, has in speeches before union gatherings and statements asserted that the men would accept no reductions but would seek increases.

Ordinarily wage negotiations in the bituminous industry have been begun between an organization of operators in what is known as the Central competitive field, including Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois, and the union. The agreement reached in this area has been the basis of similar agreements in all the union outlying districts.

Certain of the Pennsylvania operators have given notice that they would not renew the wage negotiations this year in asociation with other sections of the central field. West Virginia wage scales chiefly non union, were the chief competitive factor.

Secretary Hoover, some weeks ago, induced the operators to meet with President Lewis, and submitted a proposition that the entire question be submitted to arbitration. This, however, the union representatives refused, on the ground that the constitution of their organization forbade the submission of the question to outside arbitration in advance of direct negotiation with the employers. This position has remained unchanged, although Mr. Lewis was called to Washington last week for a conference with Secretary Hoover.

CARMEN WILL NOT RETURN TO WORK

If Men Do Not Return They Will Lose Seniority Rights.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 19—Union car men of Richmond, out on strike in protest against in wadges of the Virginia Railway and Power company, announced tonight, after close of the fourth day of the strike that they would disregard the ultimatum laid down by the company and would not return to work.

General Manager Harvell, of the Richmond-Petersburg divison, had announced that unless the men returned to work by mid-night January 20, they would lose their seniority and would be classed as new men should they ever re-enter the employment of the company.

George Luther Wilcock, executive secretary of the Central trades and labor council of Richmond, was authority for the statement that the men would stand by the union. He stated tonight that the men were determined to continue the bid for transportation by operating jitney lines in all sections of the city.

Announcements that the city attorney had ruled that jitney men must secure licenses tomorrow stirred the union officials to action today. They declared that they had been assured by Director of Public Safety Myers that none of the drivers would be arrested tomorrow if they failed to procure licenses

Norfolk Presents Ultimatum to Power Co. in Car Strike

NORFOLK, Jan. 19.—An ultimatum to the Virginia Railway and Power company demanding that the company consent to arbitrate differences with striking carmen by ten o'clock Monday morning was adopted tonight by the Norfolk city council. Notice was sent to the railway company following the meeting that in the case the company declines to arbitrate, it will be confronted by transportation competition fostered by the city of Norfolk.

A letter read to the council by Mayor Albert L. Roper, which was adopted as expressing the sentiment of the council, declared that the reduction of wages of employes was too drastic.

In case the company agrees to arbitrate, the city council agreed to grant a satisfactory franchise, with a fare of 7 cents for the first year, instead of 6 cents but in case of refusal the council is expected to restore a 5 cent fare and take steps to "provide other and adequate transportation."

State Witness Is Uncertain About Telling the Truth

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 19.—Miss Zey Prevost, show girl, and a leading witness for the prosecution "does not remember" whether she told the truth in the first trial of Roscoe C. Arbuckle, she testified today in the second trial of the film comedian on a manslaughter charge. At the conclusion of her testimony she was ordered to return to court tomorrow. No reason for the order was assigned.

Miss Prevost was asked if Miss Virginia Rappe, whose death was made the basis of the charge against Arbuckle, said "he hurt me" after she was alleged to have been fatally injured at a party in the Hotel St. Francis. The witness said she did not hear Miss Rappe make such a statement. She was shown her testimony in the previous trial in which she was quoted as saying that Miss Rappe exclaimed, "he hurt me." Upon further questioning the witness made the admission that she did not remember if she told the truth in the first trial.

Miss Prevost who was one of the guests at the party, was on the stand most of the day. She charged that the district attorney took her into custody and threatened to send her to jail if she did not make a statement to the effect that Miss Rappe exclaimed "He killed me."

Later, she testified, she made a statement against her will, which embodied the exclamation, "he hurt me." Mrs. Josephine Xeza, a chambermaid at the Hotel St. Francis, testified to overhearing a woman cry "no, no, no' and a man answer "shut up" while the party was in progress. She listened closely, she said, and heard the cries repeated. She was excused until tomorrow.

AGREEMENT IS REACHED IN WEST VIRGINIA FIELD

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Agreement was reached at a meeting late today between Secretary Davis, of the labor department, and coal miner operators of the New River field of West Virginia, that eviction proceedings instituted against miners' families who are occupying company houses, although no longer on the pay rolls, would be stayed pending an investigation of labor conditions in the fields.

Operators entered emphatic denials of charges which representatives of the mine workers have made to officials concerning labor conditions in in their territory, and asked an investigation. Governor Morgan of West Virginia, also furnished Mr. Davis with a report on the situation and the latter in a statement said the investigation had been ordered.

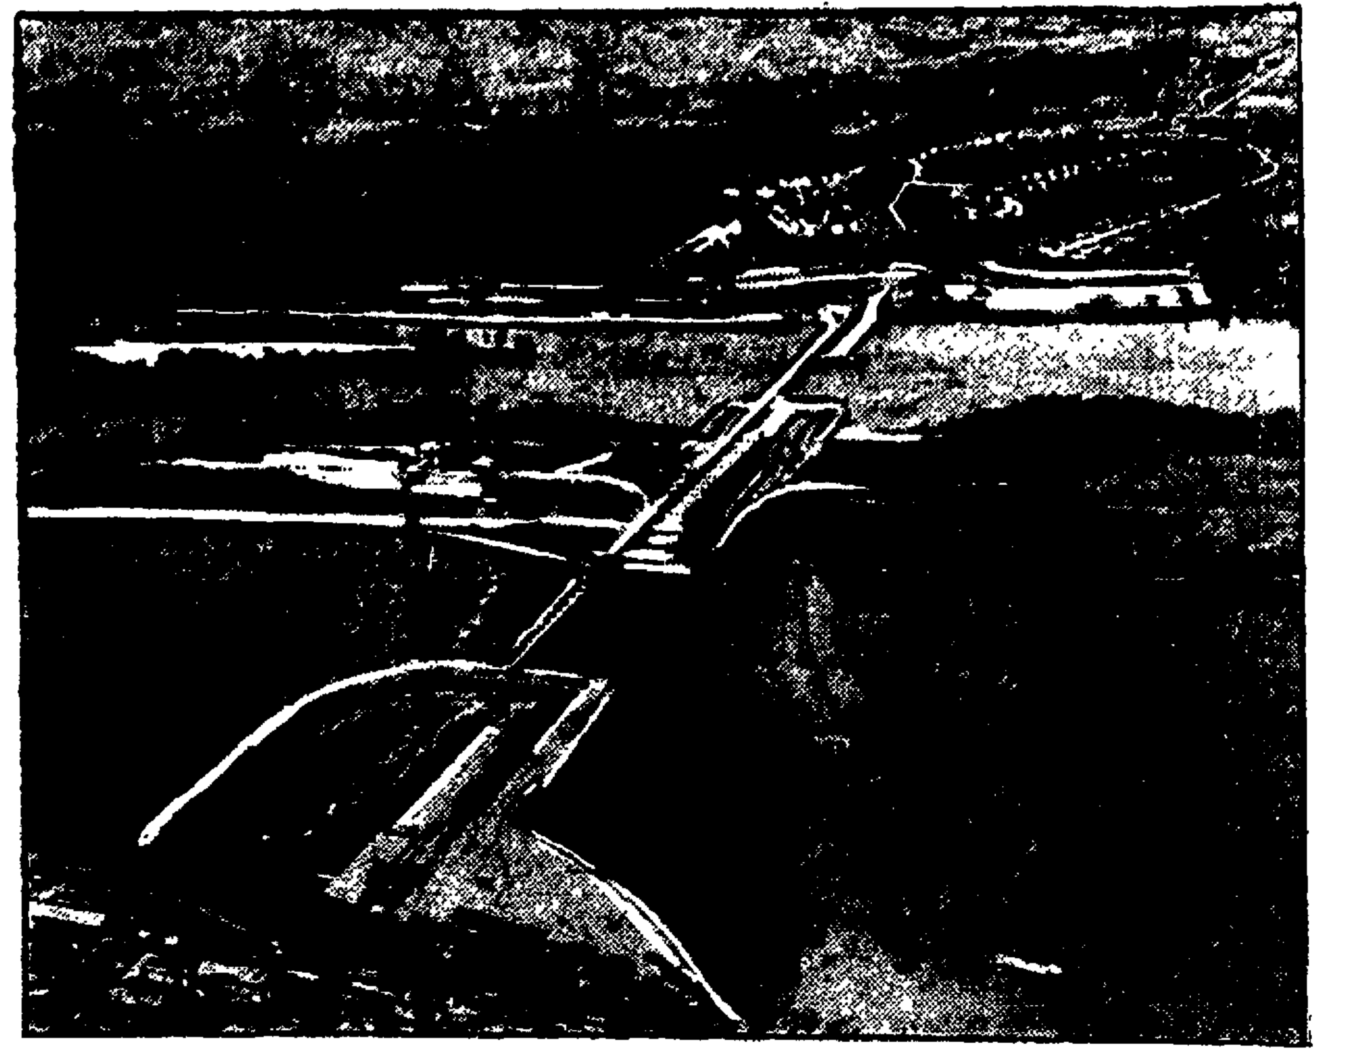
First Airplane View of Muscle Shoals



This picture, just taken from an airplane at a height of 1,000 feet, affords a definite idea of the immensity of the Muscle Shoals project which Henry Ford purposes to convert into the world's greatest industrial center. In the foreground is the Tennessee River divided by a large island which is bridged to either shore by the great Wilson Dam, one and a quarter miles long and the largest in the world. The dam is 25 feet higher than the atun Lock at Panama and exceeds the great Roosevelt Dam by 35 feet. Ford also proposes another dam at Lesser Muscle Shoals which would make the river navigable for ocean liners to Birmingham. Ford is now in Washington awaiting action on his bid for the project.

Lorillard Head Denies That Firm Has Ever Conspired

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Thomas Maloney, president of the P. Lorillard company, issued a statement today denying that his concern, as charged by the Federal Trade commission in a report to the United States Senate yesterday, had conspired to depress prices of leaf tobacco and had connived with jobbers associations to keep up prices on tobacco products.

"There is absolutely no foundation in fact for these charges," Mr. Maloney asserted. "The Lorillard company stands ready to meet and disprove them before any impartial tribunal. I particularly want to say that this company, has, in all its policies, obeyed in every respect the law on this subject as laid down by the supreme court, which has severaltimes recently overruled the Federal Trade commission in its unwarranted attacks on legitimate business."

In its report to the Senate the Federal Trade commission made charges of conspiracy against the Lorillard company, the American Tobacco company and the Liggett and Myers Tobacco company.

Needs of Near to Be Presented Sunday

The local committee, promoting Near East, are anticipating a generous response to the fund from the people of Danville on Sunday next when the needs of the sufferers of Armenia will be presented in many of the Sunday schools and churches of the city.

In the afternoon the firm, "Alice in Hungerland," will be shown at the Broadway Theatre. Following the picture will be an address by Lieutenant Connes of New York City, who has visited the Near East and is familiar with the situation.

The sentiment of the American people and of Virginia in particular is that Armenia must be saved. The value of the Armenian to his and surrounding countries is stated by that great statesman, Viscount Bryce, as follows:

"The Armenian people represent the most industrious, intelligent and generally progressive element in Western Asia. They have been educated by American colleges and schools and have appropriated the excellent teaching given them. The Armenians moreover, are not only the most industrious cultivators of the soil, but the best handicraftsmen in the countries where they dwell, superior in intelligence to the Moslem population.

"The loss of so many by the fearful massacres of 1895 and 1915 has been a terrible blow to the civilization of Asia Minor and the surrounding countries, and the best chance of restoring prosperity to these countries lies in saving what remains of the Armenian population. There are still hundreds of thousands of children surviving and to save these survivors so that these may grow up, would be to render a real service, and a permanent service to regions that have long suffered from the blight of barbarous tyranny."

SMALL HOPE FOR TAX EQUALIZATION.

[illegible] spent by the cities of Virginia which have joined hands in [illegible] to bring about equalization of [illegible] cannot be expected to bring [illegible] immediate return. The complexion of the state House and the Senate precludes any idea of the rural [illegible] yielding to the requests of the cities in the matter of a better distribution of tax money. What with naturally predominant vote of the members representing rural constituencies in Virginia and a well-[illegible] and strongly organized "Agricultural bloc" there is small hope that the propaganda will carry any [illegible] at the present session.

Like all radical movements or undertakings, reversing well-established public policy, it will take time and painstaking educational work. Figures in the tax returns to the State treasury and the percentage of paid in [illegible] drawn out strike one as being [illegible] illogical and there is ample excuse for the reforms [illegible] These figures which are taken from the authentic records of the State Treasurer show that the 100 [illegible] counties draw from the State [illegible] 227 per cent. of the amount they paid in while the cities withdraw only [illegible] per cent. of what they pay in. [illegible] is room enough for an equalization of taxes but it will never be brought about so long as there remains drawn the strong dividing line between the representatives of the cities and those of the rural districts [illegible] imaginary line true enough but are so well fixed in the minds of the Assembly as to constitute a supreme obstacle to any immediate [illegible] legislation.

DRAKES BRANCH, January 20.—(Grapevine Wireless.)—Bringing up boys and keeping them out of devilment is an old problem which does not seem to improve with the advancement of civilization. Fact is that latter day freedom of speech and action among juveniles foments a spirit of independence which often assert itself in impudence and waywardness. The home folks are regarded as old-fashioned, back numbers, and out of date, and oftimes lose hold of the youngsters before they get out of knee-pants. "Protect and save the girls" is sound doctrine, but the modern girl is a pretty wise flapper—better keep an eye on the boy, also, as we jog along. When girls get big enough they are grown, like potatoes, but boys are slower cutting eye-teeth and getting over the goslins. There is still virtue in family prayers and the hickory stick—let's get back to first principles, Daddy man, before it is too late.

The Down Grade.

A young fellow who was born in Jayville left his home town and went out into the world. Reports came from several large cities that he had become a sport, that he smoked cigarettes, played pool and drank beer. The people at home were horrified. Some years later the fellow died in New York, and his body was shipped back to Jayville, for burial. An old straight-laced preacher in Jayville was asked to say a few words over the grave. And this is what he said:

"Brethren: This man was born in Jayville. He went to San Francisco. Later he went to New Orleans. Later he went to Chicago. Later he went to New York City, where he died. His descent into hell was certain, but it was at least gradual!"

Woman Wages Five-Year Fight For Lives of Arctic Babies

MRS. FRANK H. SPENCE. HER HUSBAN' DINARCTIC COSTUME AND ABOVE (LEFT) A PICTURE OF THEIR HOSPITAL AT POINT BARROW, ALASKA, AND (RIGHT) A VIEW FROM THE WINDOW.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—How would you like to live in a place where—

You give the grocer an order in November and get the delivery the following August—

You feel warm when the temperature rises as high as 25 degrees below zero—

Butter costs $1.65 a pound and coal $100 a ton—

The mail boat comes once a year?

A former Clevelander and his wife liked it so well that they stayed over an extra year or two.

Their names? Dr. and Mrs. Frank H. Spence.

The place? Point Barrow, Alaska.

It's on the map—at the top of the world—600 miles above the Arctic Circle. There the Spences operated a mission house and hospital—at the jumping off place of the United States.

It is cold there—

"But the people are so warm there."

Mrs. Spence smiled kindly.

This frail woman had just reached New York after five years at Barrow. She had weathered northern storms and had suffered innumerable hardships—

"But I had to stand by my husband, didn't I?"

"She was reluctant to talk about herself.

Prompted by the doctor, she finally told their story:

"We spent several years in Unalaska, in the Aleutian Islands—the tropics of the north.

"We came back to southern California. We wanted to get out of the cold.

"But it wasn't for long. Doctor got the call to go up to Point Barrow—the natives were in need.

"We talked it over—and decided to go.

"It took us six weeks to get north from Seattle.

"There we found a white school teacher and his family and four traders. The rest of the folks were Eskimos.

"This mission home had been vacant so long—it had to be rebuilt. Doctor fixed up his hospital.

"It was the only hospital within a radius of a thousand miles. There is no other hospital in the world so far north.

"He had to be physician, minister, undertaker—and coffin maker.

"Many of the natives have tuberculosis. They live in quarter that are cramped. Fuel is scarce and they crowd to keep warm.

"The babies sucered mostly.

"We used to take the sick ones there were so many of them.

"One time doctor was called to a village a hundred miles away. He didn't get back for five weeks.

"I carried on—alone.

"But the natives said 'ong'—peace be with you—and I was happy."

Under the strain both Dr. and Mrs. Spence broke down.

They had to come home. But they wouldn't leave until another came to take their place.

In the meantime they had started building a new hospital. But it takes $15,000 a year to run it.

"During the last year," Mrs. Spence continued, "we ran short of fuel.

"We had but one fire in our house. We used the room for kitchen, bedroom, hospital ward, dispensary, drug store and storage house.

"It was hard work—but so worth while!"

The weather is so cold that even fir trees do not grow near Point Barrow.

"At Christmas time," Mrs. Spence was smiling again, "doctor built a tree of wood and paper—it was a fine one, too.

"Some day, perhaps, we may go back and build another—"

ECONOMIC WRONG AND INHUMAN TO MAKE CUT

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Jan. 19.—It would be an economic wrong and inhuman to reduce the wage rates of the mine workers of the country below living wage, declared William Green, secretary-treasurer of the international organization, to the delegates in the anthracite wage conference today. He said tremendous pressure has been brought to bear on national officers of the union for a voluntary reduction in wages, but never will the consent of the national organization be given during the life of present contracts to a reduction of wages below the standard of living.

The STEP on the STAIRS

by ISABEL OSTRANDER

BEGIN HERE TODAY

The report of a revolver, followed by hurrying footsteps on the stairs, interrupts the social evening which Detective John Barry is spending with his friend, Professor Semyonov, in the latter's rooms on the fifth floor of a New York apartment house. They rush downstairs and discover that beautiful Miriam Vane, society portrait painter, has been murdered in her studio apartment on the third floor. Ladd, a young artist on the second floor, Griswold, an irascible bachelor on the fourth, and Patricia Shaw, a magazine writer on the sixth, deny having heard the shot. Miss Shaw, a magazine writer on the sixth, deny having heard the shot. Miss Shaw, first interviewed, says that she knew Miss Vane very slightly and had not been in her studio for three weeks.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Let's have a talk, then, with the affable gentleman on the floor below," Barry suggested. "I'll wager he won't take so long this time to answer a summons!"

The unmusical snores still sounded from the rear of Henry Griswold's apartment as they reached his floor, but with a word to the officer on guard, Barry knocked peremptorily on the door and announced in loud tones:

"Police headquarters! Sergeant, if he doesn't open the door in three minutes, break it down!"

The snoring ceased instantly in a sound between a squeal and a grunt. The next instant there came a rattle of bolts and the door was flung open to disclose Griswold's lanky frame clad in a scant nightshirt, with a skullcap upon his grizzled head.

"What the devil do you mean?" he began furiously, but Craig, at a gesture from Barry, stepped forward.

"I'm the detective assigned from headquarters to investigate the murder on the floor just below you here tonight, sir, and I'd like a word with you," he said gruffly. "If you don't want to answer my questions I'll call the wagon and you can come downtown and talk to the chief!"

"Well, shut the door behind you, both of you, and sit down unless you want to call in the whole police department!" exclaimed Griswold. "I suppose I can put on a dressing gown."

He turned and padded off toward his bedroom with Craig doggedly in his wake, while Barry seated himself and glanced about him.

In a shadowy corner an old hound stood with drooping ears and one paw lifted as though to advance and the sergeant looked twice before he discovered that it was an ancient and sadly moth-eaten specimen of the taxidermist's art.

Griswold returned presently in the tattered dressing gown and flapping slippers.

"Let us get this farce over as quickly as possible, if you please."

"Do you know any of the other occupants of this house?"

"Personally, no, and I do not want to!" retorted Griswold. "I have no use for any of them!"

"You did not, then, know Mrs. Vane?"

"Most assuredly not! I never spoke to the woman in my life!" There was outraged dignity in the disclaimer. "Not that I am aware of anything to her discredit, but I know nothing about her at all."

"What can you tell me of the other tenants here?" Craig asked.

Griswold licked his thin lips avidly as though over a choice morsel of gossip. "The young man Ladd has frequently called upon Mrs. aVne, and at least once I have seen Miss Shaw issuing from her apartments."

"From Mrs. Vane's, you mean?" Barry interposed quickly. "When was that? About three weeks ago"

"Three days ago!" corrected Griswold with emphasis. "I am positive it was Tuesday, because I am rarely late at getting to my office, but on the previous night I had suffered an attack of indigestion which kept me awake and it was quite 10 o'clock in the morning when I came downstairs and saw the Shaw girl coming out of the apartment on the floor below. I did not see Mrs. Vane."

CHAPTER IV.

Craig was so visibly dumfounded at the unexpected contradiction of Miss Shaw's testimony that his fellow sergeant continued in command of the situation.

"You mean, Mr. Griswold, that Miss Shaw had been alone in Mrs. Vane's studio Tuesday morning?" he asked in the diffident tone which to those who knew him portended an impoint point in his examination of a witness.

"By no means!" Griswold stirred irritably in his chair. "That scrublooks after some of the apartments woman was there, Mrs. McGrath, who in the house."

"You're a windower, I understand, Mr. Griswold?" asked Craig.

"My wife's been dead for fourteen years, if it's any of your business!" snapped the other.

"I understand that you deny having hard the shot—" began Craig, but Griswold interrupted.

"I have stated that I did not. I was asleep until that id— Professor Semyonov clamored at my door."

"You did not come down immediately, Mr. Griswold," Barry made his second point quietly. "What finally decided you to appear upon the scene of the murder at all?"

"I did not reply to that banging upon my door because I fancied it might be some practical joke of that younk man on the second floor, Gordon Ladd, although I have never exchanged a word with him."

It was self-evident that nothing further could be gotten from him. In the hall outside the officer approached.

"The lady on the top floor, she's been down twice asking for you," he observed impartially to the two. "I didn't think you'd want to be disturbed in there, but it seems there's something she forgot to tell you awhile back."

At that moment the pale, bobbed head of Miss Shaw appeared over the banisters two flights above and, seeing them, she came hastily and silently down.

"I don't want to waste your time," she began a trifle breathlessly, "but something escaped my memory and I told you an unintention falsehood. The matter is quite trivial and irrelevant, but I do not care to have the least misunderstanding about this. When I told you that I had not entered Mrs. Vane's studio since my call upon her until tonight it was not strictly true, although I held no communication with her. A few days ago I was passing her door; she was out, but Mrs. McGrath was cleaning in there and I asked hre if I might take a peep at the portrait."

"That's all right, Miss Shaw." Honest relief shone in Craig's eyes. "It's as well that you did tell us and if anything else comes to your mind, no matter how unimportant it may seem to you, just call up police headquarters and ask for me, Sergeant Craig, or for Sergeant Barry here. We'll see that you're kept out of it as much as we can."

"Thank you, I'm sure that you will, sergeant," she responded with a nod that although still dignified, was almost cordial. "Goodnight."

She vanished up the stair and as the two sergeants continued downward Craig remarked confidentially to his companion:

"Ain't women funny? did you see how her manner changed all of a sudden when she thought she had got herself in wrong? 'Twas nothing, that visit of hers to the Vane woman's studio after all, but it's a good thing she told us after Griswold mentioned it, for we might have gone off on some whong track entirely. Do we get after young Mr. Ladd now?"

"WHAT THE DEVIL DO YOU MEAN?" HE BEGAN FURIOUSLY.

"Yes," Barry replied as they passed the tragically vacant rooms of the dead woman. "If he knew Mrs. Vane, as Griswold says, we nought to get something worth while at last."

Gordon Ladd was anticipating their coming with an eagerness which he made no attempt to concealed.

"You're headquarters men, aren't you?" he demanded. "For heaven's sake, come in and tell me if you've found out anything! Those chaps from the local precinct are dubs, and I'm almost mad over this thing! Right this way; you'll find cigars and things on that stand."

"You knew Mrs. Vane, Mr. Ladd?" It was more a statement than a question as Barry seated himself.

"Knew her? Good Lord, I—" The young man controlled himself by a visible effort and added lamely: "Yes, I have known her for some time, several years, in fact, and although she had a host of friends, I think I can claim to be one of the closest of them to her. It's the sheer impossibility of this thing, gentlemen, which has driven me nearly mad. I know that—that she was shot. I saw her body, and yet I would be more ready to believe that a bolt from heaven struck her down than a bullet sped from a human hand!"

"Why?" This time the question came as sharply as the report of a pistol itself upon the outburst of nerves stretched beyond the breaking point, and Gordon Ladd cast discretion to the winds.

"Because she was alive and well an instant almost before that shot must have been fired! I saw her. I spoke to her—I—" Too late the young man realized the slip he had made, and his face turned livid, but hastily he made an effort to retrieve his error. "It must have been the closing of my own door here when I returned that muffled the shot so that I did not hear it."

"When you returned from where?" Craig leaned forward suddenly.

That he had made such an error was instantly apparent, for the length of his accusatory speech had given the ordinarily well-poised young man an opportunity to place himself in a measure upon his guard, and his reply came in a coldly collected tone.

"You are mistaken, sergeant—or whatever your rank may be termed. When I said that I 'returned' I meant that I had only then returned from the Montaine, on East [illegible] street, where I had dined and spent the earlier part of the evening."

Craig turned in frank appeal to the larger experience of his colleague and Barry resumed the interrogation.

"Will you tell us, Mr. Ladd, just exactly what did happen this evening, from the time you left [illegible] where you dined until [illegible] your apartment here you heard [illegible] eager hammering upon the entrance below?" he asked in a [illegible] persuasive tone.

THE FOUR HORSEMEN

The long awaited production of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" is coming to the Majestic for three days starting Monday night, January 23rd, with matinees Tuesday and Wednesday. This is the picture that cost one million dollars to make and from all accounts it was well spent as critics agree that all other efforts at production on a grand scale have been surpassed and in the principal cities where it has been shown all records have been broken at the highest prices ever paid for a like entertainment. The appeal of the story itself has already been proved through the success of the novel by Vincente Belasco Ibanez, upon which the photo drama is founded. It's sale throughout the world runs into millions and if the verdict of notables high in fame and art is to be taken the picture has maintained the sincerity and earnestness of the story and in many cases heightened it. In fact, with its unusually beautiful and impressive musical score writtenn by Ernest Luz of New York which is rendered by an augmented orchestra under the direction of L. E. Manoly, of Boston, its appeal to an audience does not seem to be that of a picture in the accepted sense of the term. It's long engagements in the high class theatres of the principal cities has given it a standing in artistic endeavor that no photo drama has ever reached before.

The friends of Miss Fannie Walters of Chatham, Va., will be glad to hear that the operation she had for cateract was successful. She is at General hospital and doing well.

Cap With Hairs In It Will Play Big Part in Hines Case

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 19.—Four light red or yellow hairs found in a cap which is said to have belonged to Walter Hines, of South Richmond, who is now being tried for the murder of a policeman, will figure in the outcome of the trial. The hairs were found there by Detective Wright after the cap had been receipted for by Hines. The prosecution is thus laying the foundation of the evidence which it believes will succeed in working the conviction of the assuced.

Hines had admitted that the cap is his, and it is claimed that the cap was dropped by the man who fled from the place of the murder, being picked up by an officer. The cap is to be one of the strong links in the chain if the man is convicted.

The contention is that the hair found in the cap and Hines' is the same. The defense is resisting the step that the prosecution is seeking to take in the case.

Judge Wells allowed the evidence to stand, showing that Hines had been twice convicted of violation of the prohibition laws and that the last conviction carried a penitentiary sentence, thus establishing the motive for the murder of the policeman.

DAVIS IS CONVICTED

COCHRAN, Ga., Jan. 19.—Tommy Davis was convicted of manslaughter in Bleckley county Superior court today in connection with the killing of Bunyot Roland, another young man, last December. Following a party at hte Sapp home Roland was stabbed to death.

Manslaughter Verdict In Fred Stubbs Case

FITZGERALD, Ga., Jan. 19.—After being out for 72 hours a jury in Beh Hill Superior court returned a verdict of guilty of manslaughter against Fred Stubbs at 6:30 o'clock tonight.

The jury recommended that the sentence be from one to twenty years. Judge O. T. Gower immediately sentenced Stubbs as directed and he was taken to the county jail.

Fred Stubbs was the first of fourteen men to be placed on trial in connection with the fatal shooting of Engineer W. T. Reed on July 5, of last year.

There were only a half dozen people in the courtroom when the jury informed a bailiff that a verdict had been reached.

Stubb's wife is la Daytona, Fla., unable to attend the trial.

Solicitor General J. B. Wall made no annoucement tonight as to whom he would place on trial next in connection with the disorders of last year on the A. B. and A. railroad.

Engineer Reed was in charge of a switch engine that was used to carry present employes of the A. B. and A. railroad to the shops, two miles from town, and return. Strike sympathizers established a picket post half way between. It was while passing this picket post on the night of July 5 that the locomotive was fired upon. There were a half dozen men on board the locomotive at the time. Engineer Reed the only one hit, was taken to a hospital in Atlanta where he died several weeks later.

Jap Government Charged With All the Crimes

TOKIO, Jan. 19.—(By the Associated Press.)—Japan's government party, the Seiyu-Kai, must be held responsible for maladministration at home and abroad, says the platform of the Kensei-Kai, or opposition party, formulated at a mass-meeting today, preparatory to the resumption of the Diet next Saturday.

Among the announced policies of the Kensei-Kai are:

Co-operation with the powers for maintaining peace, universal suffrage, regulation of prices so as to lighten the burdens of the people, limitation of armament, development of education, naval retrenchments and improvement of popular economic methods.

Viscount Kato, president of the party, delivered a speech in which he expressed regret at the maintenance of Japanese troops in Siberia, by which he declared Japan had gained only the enmity of Russia and international suspicion. He saw no reason to decry the work of the Washington conference, since he said the Kensei-Kai had first advocated the restriction of armaments. But he deplored what he called disregard for the spirit of the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

STILL BLOWS UP

FITZGERALD, Ga., Jan. 19.—A distillery in the governmnet sweet potato syrup experiment station here blew up late this afternoon. H. C. Gore, chemist in charge, received serious burns on his arms and face, but doctors say he will recover.

DIZZY—WRECKED HIS AUTOMOBILE

"Two years ago my stomach trouble got so bad that I was almost constantly filled with gas. This made me very dizzy at times. Last Fall I was almost overcome by one of those dizzy spells while driving my car, and ran it into a telephone pole, badly wrecking the car. A friend recommended Mayr's Wonderful Remedy for my trouble. Since taking the first dose I have steadily improved, and feel better now than ever in my life." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. J. C. McFall's drug store, Trent Drug Co., and druggists everywhere.—adv.

At Shelton Memorial Church on Tuesday

A stewardship conference of unusual interest was held at the Shelton Memorial Presbterian church last Tuesday afternoon and evening. The attendance was good at both sessions of the conference, and many expressions of interest in the work of the church at large were heard. Rev. W. E. Hudson, D. D., of Staunton, Va., manager of the Presbyterian progressive program in the Syndo of Virginia was in charge of the conference.

The Rev. Wade C. Smith, pastor of the Church-by-the-Side-of-the Road, Greensboro, N. C., gave a most interesting chalk talk in the afternoon. He also gave an earnest and beautiful illustrated lecture on "Stewardship" in the evening.

Helpful and inspiring addresses were made by the Rev. Albert Sidney Johnston, D. D., pastor of the First Baptist church, Charlotte, N. C., and Charles M. Norfleet, Winston-Salem, N. C.

At the conclusion of the delightful and bountiful supper sreved by the ladies of the Shelton Memorial church and while the delegates were still seated around the tables, a number of five-minute addresses were made by laymen. Most of these were Danville men.

J. P. Ward, Greensboro, N. C., and a member of the "Myers Minute Men" an organization of the First Presbyterian church of that city, spoke in and interesting and forceful manner with regard to the management of the every-member canvass as it is conducted in that large and influential church.

A committee was appointed to aid in the organization of the laymen of the Presbyterian churches of this city and the surrounding country, this organization to furnish speakers to aid in the carrying out of the church's program, especially by giving inspiration to the weaker churches.

Much of the success of the conference was due to the fine work of preparation on the part of the Rev. V. G. Smith and the members of the congregation of the Shelton Memorial church. A spirit of fine Christian fellowship and cordiality was shown by the pastor and people. Similar conferences are being held throughout the Synod of Virginia, and are proving to be most helpful.

Formal Request For Negro Made To Canadian Govn't

RALEIGH Jan. 19.—Formal request that the state department ask the extradition to this state of Matthew Bullock, now being held at Mamilton, Ontario, to answer the charges of inciting riot, secret assault and conspiracy in connection with a shooting affray at Norlina, this state, about a year ago, was forwarded to Washington tonight by Governor Morrison.

Governor Morison forwarded the papers to the state department at the request of Solicitor General Garland E. Midyette of the third judicial district. Bullock, in his fight to prevent being returned to Warren county has enlisted the aid of the negroes in Canada and the question as to whether his return would be permissible under present international statutes has caused quite a stir in Canadian court circles. Bullock has frankly stated that his return to North Carolina would result in his being lynched.

Bullock is alleged to have been the leader of a group of negroes who instigated a riot in Norlina on the night of January 23, 1921, in which two white men and a neggro were wounded. On the night following the disorder, Plummer Bullock, a brother of the accused, and Alfred Williams, were taken from the Warren county jail by a masked mobe and lynched.

CRAZED NEGRO MORTALLY WOUNDS POLICE OFFICER

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—A crazed negro, awaiting examination as to his sanity, today shot and mortally wounded Patrolman Otto W. Motz in a rear room of the West 123d street police station. Motz, who had a wife and two children, died less than an hour later. He had been shot with his own gun.

A second killing was averted when the gun misfired. Patrolman John Hagstrand was the second intended victim. In the room where Motz was shot, he leaped at the negro as he stood over his victim's body. The maniac wheeled about, pressed the weapon against Hagstrand's abdomen, and pulled the trigger.

The negro, who later gave the name of Frank Whaley, was subdued, after a terrific fight in which a half score of policemen beat him down.

Whaley had been taken to the police station on complaint of tenants in a Harlem apartment house that he was annoying and threatening them.

Shoes Roll In.

The local offices report that the appeal in the Register and Bee for shoes met with a wonderful resnonse, over 20 persons phoning offering foot wear with the result that over 50 pairs of shoes were donated in three days. The Salvation Army thanks those who contributed shoes sincerely and heartily, the result being many poor souls have warm feet who would have been going about wet and cold.

WITNESS TELLS OF DEATH OF SOLDIER BY FIRING SQUAD

War Department Had no Record of This Killing.

WASHINGTON, Jan 19—George Washington Yarbrough, a high school teacher of Roanoke, Ala., and [illegible] American Expeditionary Forces, told a Senate investigating committee today that he had witnessed the shooting of an American soldier by a firing squad near the Chateau Thierry region in July 1918.

Regarded by the committee as [illegible] the most clear-headed of [illegible] men testifying concerning the alleged hanging of soldiers without trial, Yarbrough, himself a reluctant witness, declared the sight of one man being led to his doom with hands tied behind his back made him forget for the [illegible] the screeching of enemy shells [illegible]. The witness said he was close enough when the officer commanding the squad gave the order to fire to hear the soldier, barely 20 years old, plead to be permitted to die with his eyes unbound.

Members of the committee and Col. Walter A. Bethel, assistant judge advocate general of the army, listening closely to the recital for evidence, from war department sources heretofore presented failed to show where [illegible] had met death in that way. Yarbrough was pressed by Colonel Bethel, who declared the witness was extremely intelligent, that he was not attempting to break down his story but was seeking to obtain some data which might enable him to check up on the shooting. The witness explained that he could give the names of none of the men with [illegible] at the time because they were not attached to his outfit.

There had been camp reports, the witness said, that the soldier was shot for neglect of duty in battle. Asked by Chairman Brandegee if the shooting led him to believe there had been abuse of power, Yarbrough replied "nothing whatever," as he assumed that the officer handling the squad was carrying out orders. But he thought then and now, he added, that if the army had detailed a squad to shoot a comrade it might have detailed another squad to pick up the body and bury it.

Much testimony relating to alleged abuse of enlisted men cropped out again today along with further references to the conduct of "Hard Boiled Smith." Two former service men testified they had seen three double executions at Is-Sur-Tille, at which station war department records show only two men were hanged.

The hearing was adjourned until next Wednesday.

Eight Officers of Band Are Indicted

ST. LOUIS, Jan 19—Eight officers and directors of the closed Night and Day Bank here were released on bonds totalling $275,000 here tonight after the grand jury today returned a total of 144 indictments against them upon charges of receiving funds while the bank was in failing condition. Each of the officers and directors, including presiding Judge Allen, were indicted on 17 counts, while the cashier, Arthur O. Meininger faces a total of 25 indictments. His bond was fixed at $110,000.

Hats worn by women about 40,000 B. C. are said to have been similar to those of today.

MR. AUTOMOBILE OWNER

Are you going to buy a new car or have the one you now own re-painted?

If you decide on the latter, we invite you to investigate our equipment for this work. We have a machine for spraying the works underneath the car, which usually is not painted when the work is done by hand. Our finishing room is steam-heated and as near dust-proof as can be made which is another necessity for a good paint job.

We invite you to drive in on the third floor, enter from Lynn Street, and investigate our equipment and get prices.
